Nazis Continue To Ship Jews Eastward By Truck And Freight Car

NEWS OF EXTREME CRUELTIES TRICKLES OUT

More than 1,000 Jews were forced to kneel in trenches and were machine-gunned by Nazi troops near Lomza in northern Poland and several hundred were killed in southern Poland, the British news agency Reuters said, quoting Polish reports.

Almost one-third of the Jewish population of Bessarabia was exterminated during the fighting between Russian and Rumanian troops and in the pogroms initiated after the Rumanians conquered the province, it was learned at Lisbon from a report by neutral authorities, whose identities cannot be divulged.

Another trainload of Jews, disgorged a score at a time from van-covered trucks, left a suburban Berlin freight yard for "somewhere in Poland." Similar trainloads were understood to have departed almost daily from Berlin during the last ten days.

With as much secrecy as the situation permitted, the German police, truckers and railroad men assembled the human cargo of probably 1,000 Jews caught up in the exodus. For nearly three hours the trucks, each holding about twenty Jews, drove into the yard and came back empty. In short intervals seventeen trucks were counted, eight within twenty minutes.

From outside the freight yard it was possible to watch the Jews being assembled, but the only way to get even a brief glimpse of the train was to ride past the yard on a suburban train. Shunted to a remote corner, the train appeared to consist of about twenty cars, some freight, but mostly the old type third-class passenger cars.

Two special constables and a sailor armed with rifles put a summary stop to an attempt to stroll into the freight yard. They were checking closely all credentials.

Except for the truckloads of Jews and the railroad workers, the only persons admitted were Jews carrying special passes. They left

Latvia Is Helpless To Aid Jews Against Nazi Rule

When the German army occupied Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia and set up a German administration in "Ostland", they introduced the same kind of barbarous anti-Jewish campaign as already existed in Poland and other German occupied countries.

All Jews have to wear the identifying Star of David badge; they are forbidden to walk on the sidewalks and must walk in single file. Jewish enterprises are prohibited and property confiscated. All Jews are mobilized for compulsory labor. Scores of them are arrested and accused of having been bolshevik [illegible] 5,000 Jews were [illegible] according to the American Hebrew.

Naturally, Jewish newspapers, schools and organizations are out of the question. The radio is used for anti-Semitic propaganda. The local Nazi newspaper "Deutsche Zeitung in Ostland", publishes insulting articles and whips up hatred against the Jews.

Being itself downtrodden under the heel of the German military occupation and its very existence threatened, the Latvian people are helpless and unable to improve the situation.

However, along with all the rest of the civilized world, the Latvian nation condemns this persecution of their Jewish fellow citizens, with whom they have lived together for centuries. Latvians consider Latvian Jews as their good fellow countrymen. Having themselves been oppressed and knowing what this oppression means to others, they have never harbored anti-Semitic feelings. As proof of this is the fact that the Latvian Government had granted cultural autonomy to Latvia's Jewish population. In brief, they are part and parcel of the Latvian nation. Only the liberation of Lat-

True Size Of Italy's "Jewish Danger" Measured

The Times Rome correspondent reported an official Italian communique stating that there [illegible] Jews with [illegible] and 8,674 [illegible]. The communique also stated that the population of [illegible] is 45,500,000, Jewish citizens number fewer than 1 per cent of the population.

It should have said, of course, that Jewish citizens in Italy comprise less than 1-10 of 1 per cent of the population.

This figure shows in its right proportion the size of the "Jewish Danger" that, according to the fascist government, was facing the Italian nation. As a matter of fact, large sections of the Italian population, particularly in the south, had never seen or heard of a Jew before the anti-Semitic laws were passed.

The importance of the Jewish problem in Italy is summed up in a little anecdote which was popular about three years ago. When the laws against the Jews were issued Mussolini received the following telegram from the Prefect of Patenza, the capital of one of the southern regions: "Please send down urgently at least two Jews so that I can start the anti-Semitic campaign in my province."

Christian And Jewish Leaders Predict World's Worst Holocaust If Poor Are Ignored After War

The privileged classes of Great Britain and the other war-torn nations of Europe will try to retain their position when the war is over, leaders of the National Conference, of Christians and Jews said at New Orleans, La., and predicted the world's worst holocaust if the rights of the bombed poor are ignored.

Dr. Everett S. Clinchy, president of the conference, said the churches — Catholic, Protestant and Jewish — have no "grand plan" for the post-war period, and added that "statistically church attendance in Great Britain hasn't gone up or down" since the war's start.

Nevertheless, he said, the war has done "something to the people of England, because, purged in spirit, united, chastened, they now have a deepened sense of the real value of life and less regard for money, directly the opposite of what is happening in the United States."

Dr. Clinchy and Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron, trustee of the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee of Maryland, both of whom recently returned from a trip to Britain to learn what the war had done to the "spirit of the people," took part in an institute of human relations at Loyola University.

N.Y. Jew-Baiter Is Back In Jail

DESTINY PARTY CALLED "BLIND"

Joseph E. McWilliams, head of the American Destiny party, amid murmurs of approval and disapproval from a packed courtroom in the Felony Court was ordered by Magistrate William W. Hoppin to serve the sixty-day workhouse term he had imposed on McWilliams last Sept. 9 and suspended when he found McWilliams guilty of disorderly conduct in a Yorkville speech assailing Jews.

McWilliams must serve out the rest of the sixty days beyond the time which he has already passed in jail while an earlier conviction was being appealed. This appeal was reversed. His attorney, Hallam M. Richardson, said that the conviction handed down by Magistrate Hoppin would also be appealed, estimated that his client had twenty-five days left to serve.

The right half of the courtroom, facing the bench, was filled with McWilliams' supporters. The left side was filled with opponents. Excitable dispositions bordering on the hysteric were evident among both groups. At the close of the three-hour hearing, both groups had to pass out through the same door, and a McWilliams' opponent asserted that he had been roughed by a McWilliams' adherent.

A general battle between the two groups on the second floor of the new Criminal Court Building, 100 Center Street, and later out on the sidewalk, was averted only by police cooling between them. Several middle-aged women McWilliams' supporters continue to utter imprecations against his anti-Nazi adversaries.

There were three witnesses against McWilliams, who was rearrested on Oct. 23. Morel Fuchs, an attorney, and Bernard Schwartz, a hatter, both of the Bronx, said that they heard him make a speech at Wilcth's Park, Barnes Avenue and 223th Street, the Bronx, on Oct. 15. Patrolman John M. Toohill, a plain-clothes man, testified to hearing McWilliams orate at Astoria Casino, 42-20 Nineteenth Avenue, Astoria, Queens, on both Oct. 10 and 16.

According to the testimony of Mr. Fuchs and Mr. Schwartz, McWilliams told fifty persons that Hitler had the "right dope" about the Jews, who, he was quoted as saying, controlled Washington, Wall Street, the press and radio, and should be "all sent back to the needle trades." They said he called President Roosevelt "the King of the Jews." They said handbills had been distributed advertising the meeting.

Patrolman Toohill said that at the two Queens meetings McWilliams hardly referred to the Jews.

Urge Palestine For Jews After War

A resolution urging reconstitution of Palestine as a Jewish commonwealth after the war and calling upon the British government to form a Jewish army for service in the Middle East was adopted by a mass meeting of a capacity house of 2,800 at Carnegie Hall, New York, in observance of the twenty-fourth anniversary of the Balfour Declaration of Nov. 2, 1917, in which Great Britain pledged itself to facilitate establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine.

The meeting, arranged by Zionist and non-Zionist organizations with the co-operation of the American Palestine Committee, 41 East Forty-second Street, heard Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, majority leader; Sir Norman Angell, British publicist, and other speakers declare that fulfillment of the British pledge should be an integral part of the next peace settlement.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman, who was unable to attend, sent a message in which he paid tribute to the late Supreme Court Justice Louis B. Brandeis as "a wise and powerful collaborator in the formulation of the Balfour Declaration." The Governor also praised those Jewish pioneers who have gone to Palestine "and have demonstrated their ability and their unshakeable determination to as-

Leaders Reprove Rabbi

Regret Speech Of Wise

Twelve Jewish leaders of New York City made public a letter they wrote to District Attorney [illegible], Democratic candidate for Mayor, expressing confidence in him and disapproving and deploring the criticism of him voiced by Dr. Stephen S. Wise in the Free Synagogue.

"As a matter of fairness," the letter read, "you are entitled to know that we regret the action of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise who made a political speech at the Free Synagogue and repeated it over the radio."

The group invited Mr. O'Dwyer to reply to Dr. Wise in a radio talk.

Those signing the letter were Carl Sherman, former Attorney General of New York State; Mark Eisner, former president of the Board of Higher Education and president of the Jewish Educational Society; Carl Austrian, Philip Haberman, Benjamin C. Hitzman, president of the Unity Club, Brooklyn; William Rosenblatt, Committee of the American Jewish Congress; Charles Silver, Edward Silver, former chairman Young Israel; Max J. Schneider, banker and leader of Jewish charities of the Bronx; Morris J. Solomon, of Brooklyn; Isidor Teitelbaum, Committee of the American Jewish Congress, and Paul Tilles, Men's League, of Brooklyn.

The group took exception especially to statements by Dr. Wise that Mr. O'Dwyer had not denounced the Christian Front and that he was trying "falsely to create a Jewish issue when none exists."

Nazi Commissars Rule With Heavy Hand In Lithuania

PEOPLE SUFFER FROM GERMANY AND RUSSIA

Lithuania, sandwiched between Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union, has suffered sorely from both her neighbors, and her population in the last year has decreased by 200,000 persons, nearly 10 per cent of the total, Jonas Budrys, consul general of Lithuania in New York City, told Sonia Tomara, of the New York Herald-Tribune, on the basis of reports from his country. He described the ordeal his people have suffered during one year of the Soviet regime and said they were suffering just as much under Nazi rule.

No reports on the situation of the Jews have been received from Wilno, which was 40 per cent Jewish. But in Kaunas the 20,000 Jews have been segregated into a ghetto in the slummy Vilimpol suburb. Only one-third of the Lithuanian high schools remain open, perhaps because the school buildings are needed to shelter wounded Germans. The Lithuanian state bank had been replaced by branches of the Reichsbank, food has been rationed; the daily ration of bread is not higher than in France.

To check the growing sabotage by Lithuanians, the Germans have begun public executions by shooting. German papers have reported the public shooting of three persons in Shavli and of several in Mazeikiai.

"It is hard to tell which regime is worse," said the heavy-set, gray-eyed Lithuanian diplomat at his office, 41 West Eighty-second Street. "When the Soviet troops withdrew from Lithuania in June our people expected to recover independence. But they have been deeply disappointed. Our government has been dispersed and German commissars are ruling the Lithuanians. Two-thirds of our high schools have been closed, no new students are admitted to the universities, the German papers announce public executions in the middle of our town squares."

In the last few months the country has been isolated from the world, he said. It is impossible to get letters to Lithuania from New York, where some 60,000 people of Lithuanian origin live today. But mail has arrived in New York by round-about ways from Kaunas, Wilno and other Lithuanian towns

Calls Hadassah "Foster Mother"

Meeting Hears Of Child Care

Rescue ships will not be necessary, but the Jewish population of Palestine will fight to the bitter end, Mrs. Alexander M. Dushkin, of New York, asserted at the twenty-seventh annual convention of U.S. Hadassah, women's Zionist organization, held in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Dushkin, child-welfare chairman, describing the problems of 108,000 children in Palestine for whom Hadassah is caring, explained how 25,000 children are being fed daily and taught nutrition to

How North Carolina Methodists Repaid An Old Debt To Jews

JEWISH SOLDIERS WORSHIP IN CHRISTIAN CHURCHES

By Private Jack M. Levine, 54th Engineer Battalion, Fort Belvoir, Virginia

The Jewish officers and soldiers at Rockingham, North Carolina, discovered that on Yom Kippur Eve they were in an area in which the Jewish population could be counted only by the merest handful and that the nearest synagogue was hundreds of miles away. Simon Abrahams, Army and Navy worker of the Jewish Welfare Board, had tried to secure a suitable place of worship but had failed to find a hall that would accommodate large contingents of men. As he sat in the lobby of the Walter Lang Hotel awaiting replies to earlier inquiries, a dignified, middle-aged gentleman approached the forlorn J.W.B. worker.

"Mr. Abrahams," he said, "I'm William J. Enwistle, Mayor of Rockingham. You have a problem and I'm here to help you solve it. The Methodist Church of this town is at your complete disposal. The Jewish soldiers are welcome to observe their high holy days here."

As the sun lowered over the horizon that same day, six hundred Jewish soldiers sat in the long, white pews of the Methodist Church in Rockingham. All ecclesiastical fixtures had been removed by the pastor and now, directly in front of the pulpit, on a high, brown table, lay the holy scroll. From the moment Rabbi Aaron Kammerling mounted the dais and began the Kol Nidre service, that edifice became a temple of Israel.

At the conclusion of the service, various men arose to speak, among them Chaplain Adams and the aforementioned Abrahams. "These are strange times and strange things happen," Abrahams observed. We mused his words, How strange, indeed, and yet how felicitous.

From Mayor Enwistle we heard that twenty years ago, in Wilmington, North Caroline, the citizens of that town arose one morning to find their Methodist Church a mass of charred ruins. It had burned to the ground during the night, apparently without being discovered. As word of the catastrophe spread through Wilmington, leading Jewish citizens of the town got in touch with the Methodist pastor and offered their synagogue as a house of worship until a new church could be built. The pastor and the congregation accepted the offer gratefully and vowed that some day, in some way, they would repay their Jewish friends. Word of this act spread throughout the state and similar vows were made in every Methodist parish in North Carolina. Twenty years later, in the parish of Rockingham, at the beginning of the year 5702, the good people of that city seized the opportunity to come through for "their Jewish friends."

In addition to Mayor Enwistle, Judge Phillips and Tom Leith, local U.S.O. Director, spoke warmly of their relationships with their Jewish friends and stated how happy they were that the town of Rockingham had made all this possible. The soldiers cheered the speakers in a dramatic demonstration of gratitude and goodwill.

In all, more than 1,000 Jewish soldiers attended services in strange but fortunately contrived synagogues. Yom Kippur, holiest day in the Hebrew calendar, had been well and fully observed.

Herson-Marcovitch

The marriage of Edythe Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Marcovitch, 381 Querbes Avenue, to Richard J. L. Herson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Herson, of Jamaica, L.I., N.Y., took place on Tuesday afternoon, October 28th, in the Windsor Hotel, Rabbi Abe Rose, of Jamaica Jewish Centre, and Rabbi H. Rothlatt officiating. The latter also performed the wedding ceremony of the bride's parents. R. Lewis, pianist, and B. Littner, violinist, played the wedding music, and Mrs. H. H. Tower sang. The ceremony was performed by candlelight, and blue and white chrysanthemums were used as decoration. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore ice-blue satin cut on princess lines, with a veil of matching tulle, and carried a prayer book covered with white orchids and streamers of bouvardia. Mrs. Arnold S. Blauer, cousin of the bride, and matron of honor, wore her own wedding gown of white satin, with a tiara of gardenias, and carried a muff of the same flowers. Miss Sylvia Marcovitch, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore rose orchid satin, and a tiara of flowers in her hair, and carried a nosegay of pink and white roses. Misses Norah Bernstein and Naomi Pinsky as bridesmaids, and Misses Leila Pinsky and Roxana Tauer as junior bridesmaids, all cousins of the bride, were gowned alike in frocks of dulce blue satin, had clusters of flowers in their hair, and carried nosegays of pink and white roses. Ruth Pinsky, as flower girl, was dressed in dulce blue satin cut on the same lines as the frocks worn by the bridesmaids. Arthur Marcovitch, brother of bride, and Joel Pinsky, cousin of bride, were train-bearers. Shelley Herson was best man for his brother and the ushers were Abe and Alex Pinsky, cousins of the bride. Mrs. Marcovitch, the bride's mother, wore a blue crepe tunic dinner gown, a hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of orchids. Mrs. Herson, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gown of blue lace, cut on draped lines, a hat to match, with corsage of orchids. Mrs. J. Pinsky, grandmother of bride, wore gold and black lame and a hat to match, with a corsage of roses. Mrs. M. Marcovitch, also grandmother of the bride, was in blue lace, with hat of the same color, and a corsage of roses. The reception was held in the York Room where blue and white chrysanthemums and other autumn flowers were used to decorate. Later Mr. and Mrs. Herson left by plane for Washington and Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a beige wool dress, a red hat and accessories, and a grey Persian lamb coat. The out-of-town guests included Flt.-Lt. C. Tauer, uncle of the bride, of Uplands; Mr. and Mrs. B. Eisenstein, Mr. and Mrs. M. Drucker, Mrs. S. Herts, of New York; Mrs. J. Kaplan, A. Kaplan, Mrs. L. Pagan, Dr. Jack Obermann, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. S. Bernstein, Miss Norah Bernstein, of Glen Cove, N.Y., Herman Cauter, and Cyril Hermole, of Jamaica, L.I. Mr. and Mrs. Herson will live in Jamaica, L.I.

Wiseman-Brainin

The marriage of Evelyn, daughter of the late Saul Brainin and of Mrs. Ida Brainin, Dornal Avenue, to Hyman S. Wiseman, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Wiseman, was solemnized on Sunday afternoon, October 26th, at Shaare Zion Synagogue. Rabbi Julius Berger officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Samuel Kramer. She wore an afternoon dress of Delft blue, with matching turban and Dubonnet accessories, carried a Bible covered with a spray of white orchids and orange blossoms, and had a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Shirley Brainin, wearing a draped model of gold jersey, with matching hat and brown accessories. Her corsage was of baby mums and daisies. Samuel Alboim was best man. Mrs. Brainin, the bride's mother, wore a moss green afternoon dress, with black accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. M. Wiseman, aunt of the groom, wore black silk with beaded trimmings, black accessories, and a corsage of red roses. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Ida Samuelson, of Burlington, Vt.; Mrs. P. Bergman, of Providence, R.I.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laing, of Bedford, Quebec. A reception was held, the couple leaving later on a motor trip. For travelling Mrs. Wiseman wore a bottle green wool trimmed with velvet, black coat with mink trimming, mink hat and muff.

Bruser-Belkin

The marriage of Freda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Belkin, Maplewood Avenue, to Dr. David Bruser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bruser, of Macklin, Sask., was solemnized on Sunday, October 26th, at five o'clock, in the chapel of the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue. Dr. H. Abramowitz officiated, assisted by Cantor N. Mendelson and Mrs. M. N. Fineberg at the organ. Both sides of the canopy were decorated with standards of yellow mums and bronze oak leaves. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a slate gray afternoon dress, shoes to match, a headdress of ostrich plumes and a tulle veil, and had a string of pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pompoms. The maid of honor was Miss Anne Belkin, cousin of the groom, who wore a turquoise dress, hat to match, and carried a colonial nosegay of carnations and bouvardia. Hyman Wolochow, cousin of the groom, was best man. A reception for about sixty guests was held at the Mount Royal Hotel. The tables were centered with white and mauve pompoms and huckleberry and candelabra. Why Children Leave Home

By Helen Falns, Of The Toronto Jewish Child Welfare Association

(Real names are not used here)

After a hasty courtship they married, and they lived happily for some time. But soon Mrs. S. could no longer remain blind to the stark facts facing her: She found herself bound to a man who was from a strange world, they did not speak the same language nor did they believe in the same things. She realized that she had been carried away by her husband's good looks and his air of a conquering hero. She had learned too late that he made a precarious living by his wits, and his shady escapades kept her nervously awaiting some explosion.

Mrs. S. was a sensible woman. She tried hard to keep her home together. But Mr. S's temperament was not suited for the respectable life she craved and the natural result was constant quarreling and bickering. The coming of the baby did not help matters. Mrs. S. grew frightened. Maybe Davey would imitate his father's ways. The climax came when Mr. S. struck his wife. She had patiently put up with unpaid rent, lack of food, and many indignities. But this was the worst. She felt she had to act. She wanted to return to work, but who would take care of her boy?

With this in mind the mother came to the Jewish Child Welfare Association and threshed out her problems with a worker. Together they agreed that the most feasible plan would be to place the child in a foster home, and this was done. Mrs. S. is now working. She has regained her confidence and self-respect. As soon as her divorce takes place she expects to make a new home for her child.

This is how one foster home helped to solve one woman's urgent problem. There are many others who require foster home service. The Jewish Child Welfare Association, WA. 1876, would appreciate more applications for foster care of children.

MARRIAGES

Silver-Cepler

The marriage of Eve, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Cepler, Cecil Street, to Sydney, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Silver, Grace Street, was solemnized on November 2nd, at McCaul Street Synagogue, Rabbi Moshe Gold and Rev. B. Wladowsky officiating. Louis Jessel sang "Because." The bride was given in marriage by her parents, and wore a white gown with lace bodice, net skirt, and slight train, and lace elbow-length gloves which came to points over her hands. Her short veil of tulle illusion fell from a tiara headdress and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and bouvardia. Miss Faye Silver, sister of the groom, was maid of honor in a gown of blue brocade with net skirt. The bridesmaids were Mesdames Max Jessel, in white and purple satin with net skirt; Nathan Zussmer, of Glen Cove, N.Y., in red taffeta; Joseph Cepler, of Chatham, in teal blue crepe; Frank Cepler, of Chatham, in blue metallic; and Miss Lillian Germansky, of Windsor, in blue brocade, all carrying shower bouquets of roses and bouvardia, and having tiara headdresses. Eleanor Silver and Rosalind Saltzman were flower girls, in blue taffeta floor-length dresses trimmed with velvet, and matching bonnets, and carried old-fashioned nosegays. Mark Gilbert acted as best man and the ushers were: Max Jessel, Joseph Cepler, Nathan Zussmer and Bernard Jessel. A dinner and reception followed, the bride's mother receiving

GALLS HADASSAH "FOSTER MOTHER"

"beat the blockades." She praised the morale of the people, who, she said, are "geared for self-defense to the point of religious zeal."

"They will stand by to the bitter end," she said. "No rescue ships shall tempt them to leave, for they know they must remain and fight to hold one of the strongest bulwarks for democracy on the Near Eastern front."

Other speakers who participated in the symposium, entitled "Palestine, Builder of Youth," as the convention turned its attention from political problems to the needs of the youth of Palestine were Mrs. David B. Greenberg, of New Rochelle, N.Y., chairman of the Youth Aliyah (immigration) committee of Hadassah; Miss Gisela Warburg, a member of the former German banking family, and Dr. Shlomo Bardin, of Palestine, new director of the American Zionist Youth Commission.

Mrs. Greenberg reported that $413,608 had been raised since September, 1940, for Youth Aliyah activities, and stressed the need for new crafts to help produce a generation of competent technicians in Palestine. Miss Warburg gave a picture of the exodus of 1,200 Jewish refugee children, most of whom wandered for almost a year on the Polish border before making their way to the Near East.

Middle-class Jewish children, many of whom had been intended previously for professions, must be converted into farmers, factory workers and skilled craftsmen so that Palestine's problem of construction may be solved, Dr. Bardin said.

Hadassah delegates voted to plant a garden in Palestine to be known as "Unity Garden" in tribute to the delegates of the general conference of the American Unitarian Association who stood "anti-Semitism as a flagrant attack upon a religious minority."

Kindling the Sabbath lights was supervised by Mrs. David De Sola Pool, wife of Dr. David De Sola Pool, rabbi of the First Jewish Congregation in New York City. In making her prayer, Mrs. Pool pointed out that the Sabbath lights had always been "the flame which kept Judaism alive within the Jewish heart" even in the period of the Spanish Inquisition, when Jews kindled their Sabbath lights in "tall jars so that their gleam might not be seen by the Hitlers of that day."

The Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, paid tribute to Justice Brandeis as a pioneer whose ideas had to infiltrate into American thought.

Referring to the Balfour Declaration, he intimated that the United States Government would see to it that it was enforced in its literal and original sense. "A higher law than the law of nations," he said, should give to the Jews the land which they have rehabilitated in Palestine.

Other speakers were Dr. Solomon Goldman, of Chicago, Miss Susan Brandeis, daughter of the late justice, and Mrs. Edward Jacobs, member of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Dr. Goldman declared that Britain's interpretations of the Balfour Declaration "have often shocked civilized man and wounded every Jewish heart."

"The honor and future of England demand that she rest true to herself," he said. "We must help her fight the appeasers in her midst who have survived the wreckage of Munich."

Miss Brandeis gave an intimate glimpse of her father's devotion to the Zionist cause and Mrs. Jacobs reviewed the justice's support of Hadassah and other practical Zionist upbuilding organizations.

By a unanimous vote, Mrs. David De Sola Pool, of New York, was re-elected to her third term as national president. Mrs. Samuel Daniger, of New York, Mrs. Harry Berkman, of Chicago, and Mrs. I. M. Golden, of San Francisco, were re-elected as three of five presidents.

The other two vice presidents, newly elected, were Mrs. Samuel W. Halprin and Mrs. Albert P. Schoolman, both of New York.

Three other New Yorkers, chosen unanimously, were Mrs. Emanuel Halprin and Mrs. Samuel J. Rosenberg, re-elected recording secretary and treasurer, respectively, and Miss Juliet N. Benjamin, new national secretary.

The delegates accepted a budget of $1,215,000 for health, child welfare, refugees, supplies and land reclamation work in Palestine and voted the expenditure of an additional $170,000 for Hadassah's American program to include education and an intensified youth project.

via and restoration of Latvian independence can save also the Latvian Jews.

All real estate belonging to Jews, particularly commercial establishments, have been confiscated by the Reichskommissar and reserved for German merchants coming from Eastern Prussia.

It is planned to centralize all trade, which will be managed by two or three large German firms. It is said in Kaunas that these are only temporary measures but that one can expect them to remain in force for the duration of the war.

A certain German Balt — a former merchant of Riga — called Wittrok, who is a close relative of Rosenberg, has been appointed Mayor of Riga. Wittrok is known to be an ardent German and left Latvia for good already in 1936.

The Liberty Boulevard in Riga, the Latvian Capital, dedicated to Latvian soldiers who fought and died for Latvia's independence, has been changed to Adolf Hitler Boulevard; Meierovics Boulevard, first Latvian foreign minister, to Alfred Rosenberg Boulevard; Elizabeth Street to Walter von Fletenberg Street, a Master of the Livonian Order in the XVI century; Skolas Street to K. E. von Baehr Street, a German Baltic chauvinistic journalist and propagandist; Unity Square to Hindenberg Square; Barnicas Street to General von Laudon Street, Gerlieb Merkel Street, a German Balt friendly to Latvians, to Bismark Street, who was friendly to Russians, and several other streets. German translations have been placed beside all Latvian inscriptions of streets.

Rheinisch Westfalische Zeitung reports from Vilna that Ulica Niemiecka, a well known business street which formerly housed most of the Jewish establishments in the city, has been made completely "Judenrein," and that "It is intolerable that Jews live on a street called 'German Street.'"

The newly created German administration has already seized approximately 330 country estates which had previously been confiscated by the Soviets. Special German administrators have been settled now on these estates.

The big private buildings which had been nationalized by the Soviets have not only not been returned to their Lithuanian owners but have been placed at the disposal of the Reichskommissar.

All sale of butter and cottage cheese has been prohibited in Latvia. On August 19 the German Wirtschaftskommando called together representatives of all Latvian dairy cooperatives and dairymen in order to issue instructions to them regarding the delivery of butter to the Germans.

The slaughtering of calves is forbidden. All the Soviet farms which had been organized by the bolsheviks from private farms must remain as they are and will be managed directly by the Wirtschaftskommando. The Wirtschaftskommando will also take over all public and community real estate.

The Germans have taken away the horses of all Riga cab drivers and have sent them to the German farms. All farms smaller than 20 acres are prohibited the use of horses and farm hands; they must unite into larger units. The German Wirtschaftskommando has taken over all real estate belonging to Jews or to persons missing i.e., who have been shot, deported or have disappeared.

Meanwhile, authorities in Slovakia, Nazi-held territory, likewise embarked on a policy of increased anti-Jewish persecution. The pro-Nazi newspaper, Slovak, published in Bratislava, printed a story that indicates difficulties Jews have even in obtaining food. It states that a Slovak fish dealer was sentenced to one month's imprisonment for selling fish secretly to Jews.

the yard in a group, apparently after bidding farewell to the travelers—an indication that the group was largely Berlin Jews.

One of the group was asked whether the train was made up of passenger or freight cars, said, "freight cars—but they are full of people." Another insisted that the cars were passenger cars, adding, "one more transport all the way to Poland!"

Since the trucks were screened, it was impossible to see the occupants. The Jews were understood to have been instructed to be ready to leave at 2 p.m. The first trucks began rolling into the yard soon after that hour, about four before the train left.

Transport of 48,000 Jews from Prague to resettlement areas in Nazi conquered lands to the east has been started, and all Jews are to be cleared out of Bohemia-Moravia cities "within a short time," Dienst aus Deutchland disclosed.

The authoritative commentary declared that Jewish transports were leaving regularly, but did not give their destination. Of the 350,000 Jews in the protectorate when it was taken over by Germany in March, 1939, only 90,000 are left, Dienst stated.

A dispatch from Zagreb, in partitioned Yugoslavia, said the Croatian government had decreed state acquisition of all Jewish holdings for revival of the national economy.

URGE PALESTINE FOR JEWS AFTER WAR

some their full part in the struggle to preserve freedom and democracy in the world."

Another message from Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, of New York, who said that the American Palestine Committee, of which he is chairman, declares Palestine to be "an important bulwark on the democratic front" and that if the next peace is to be equitable and lasting, the Jewish national home must be an integral part of the new world order. Senator Wagner said the Jews of Palestine should be allowed to place a substantial armed force in the Middle East and he regretted that previous offers of such a force have not been accepted.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, chairman of the mass meeting, said "we solemnly ask" Britain to declare "that there will be no departure from the letter and the spirit of the Balfour Declaration." Other speakers were Jan Masaryk, foreign minister of the exiled government of Czecho-Slovakia; Count Carlo Sforza, former Foreign Minister of Italy, and Count Jacques de Sieyes, representative in the United States of General Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement.

Senator Barkley, pointing out that 500,000 Jews in Palestine are loyally supporting Great Britain against the Axis, declared the restoration of the Jewish people "is not only a matter of elemental justice to them, but is also one of world-wide importance in the future peace of mankind." Because of their history and character, he said, the Jews are entitled to take their place among the nations of the world.

The joint resolution adopted by the United States House and Senate in 1922 indorsing the Balfour declaration is still the sentiment, Senator Barkley said, of Congress, the government and the people of the United States.

"It is not necessary or desirable," he said, "that Palestine should have all of the Jewish people; but it is necessary that the Jewish people should have all of Palestine as a homeland."

He urged admission into the British Middle Eastern command of a Jewish army under its own flag, as are the forces of the exiled French, Poles and Czechs.

Sir Norman Angell held that no Englishman could discuss Palestine with a Jewish audience without "a deep sense of apology." He called "the tragedy of Palestine part of the general tragedy of appeasement," saying the British had appeased the Arabs at the cost of the Jews to protect the Middle East.

and some reports have come from neutral European countries.

A few days before the Soviet-German war began, Mr. Budrys said, the Lithuanians rose against the Soviet regime and formed their own government. The Premier was to be Colonel Kazis Skirpa, former Lithuanian Minister to Berlin, and the Vice-Premier Dr. Joseph Ambrozevicius. The Germans never allowed Colonel Skirpa to leave for Kaunas. Their own administrators came into Lithuania instead in the wake of the armies which swept into Russia and the new order was installed.

In July Lithuania was divided by the Germans into three districts—Wilno, Kaunas and Shavli. Dr. Adrian von Renteln, a friend of Alfred Rosenberg, the Nazi ideologist, was appointed general commissar for Lithuania, responsible to Heinrich Lohse, Reich commissar for Ostland (Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia and White Russia). Herr Lohse issued a proclamation on July 23 telling the Lithuanians that the Germans troops had freed them from the scourge of Bolshevism.

"The German government will strive, in the interests of your welfare, to assure you of work, bread and progressive development," the proclamation said. "However, the German administration insists that all of its regulations be carried out unconditionally, for they serve but one purpose—the security of your country and the safety of your lives."

The Lithuanian people understood. The Lithuanian Vice-Premier tried to wire Adolf Hitler but had no reply. On Aug. 5 he and his government were forced to resign.

There was a gathering at the tomb of the unknown soldier. The Lithuanian anthem was sung. Dr. Ambrozevicius asked the people to be patient and to keep faith. Lithuania's independence was buried once more.

Mr. Budrys explained how harsh the Soviet regime had been on the Lithuanians and how little better the German rule is today. About 60,000 Lithuanians were deported into Russia by Soviet authorities. Men, especially technical experts, were sent to factory centers, but their wives and children were deported ruthlessly into the Barnaul district of Siberia, at the foot of the Altai Mountains.

"Letters from them are arriving here now," the consul said. "They ask for information about the men. While the deported Poles have been freed by the Soviet government, the Lithuanians still are under the Soviet law."

Mr. Budrys explained that the population of Lithuania, estimated at 2,300,000 in 1940, already has been reduced because some 30,000 persons fled into Germany at the moment of Soviet occupation. Some 90,000 are missing as a result of the Soviet-German war, he added. The Germans do not allow Lithuanians who fled before the Soviets to return to their native country.

Internees

In a number of camps in the Dominion, as prisoners of war, are found Jewish refugees who escaped the scourge of the Nazis and found originally sanctuary in England. These victims were hastily picked up by the British authorities among other aliens and interned because of the possible general danger of fifth column activities at a time of grave threat of invasion of the British Isles by the Germans. By now for the most part the interned Jewish refugees in Canada are properly classified and the history of their individual cases well establishes them as innocent victims of an hour of great crisis.

Quite a number of them are mere youths who at the time of their internment were attending schools for higher education. The Canadian authorities have been co-operative under war circumstances and regulations, to ease the lot of these imprisoned humans. The non-sectarian Refugee Committee in which Jews hold representation has rendered good service. But under even the best of circumstances human beings when closed in for any period of time long for physical and spiritual freedom. Psychologically it would be a great blessing if these internees could be released as quickly as possible and restored to normal life in human society.

Perhaps a formula can be discovered in a spirit of brotherly love so that even under present regulations these humans can be called to give of themselves in the cause of democracy and the war effort here or in the British Isles. All agencies governmental and social welfare, ought, in the truest spirit of religion to seek to bring comfort and release to these who are torn by force of world upheaval from family, dear ones and friends and who are truly overcome by the sense of loneliness and purposelessness.

In Loving Remembrance

Hosts of loved ones now sleeping in far-flung battlefields of the earth, who died in the cause of a better world during 1914-1918, will be solemnly memorialized on Armistice Day. But in sorrow we confess that within a scpre of years the ideals for which they gave all are now shattered. The old evils are in the throne. The world is again experiencing the tragedy and agony of war. The peace supposedly arrived at in 1918 was lost though the war against Kaiserism has been won. In place of the Kaiser, Hitler is leading the German hosts in battle against civilization. Is war never to cease? Must mankind ever experience cycles of wholesale human slaughter?

It seems to us that if only nations and men would choose the way of genuine religion and deal in terms of righteousness, the pathway to peace could easily be established. The hopeful thing in the present agony is indeed the fact that a universal shame seems to possess us all that another war has now to be fought. May hostility soon cease. May mankind truly try again to realize the ideal visioned by the League of Nations. May God speed the day of universal peace and remove causeless hatred from the hearts of the children of men. May all recognize that we are children of One Father that One God created us all.

With tear-dimmed eyes, standing by the tombs of our known and unknown dead on Armistice Day, let us resolve, even amidst war, to take up the thread of life anew and build the better world.

Unitarians Protest Rise Anti-Semitism

My good friend, Dr. Milton Hersey, of Montreal, prominent in the Church of the Messiah, and a most distinguished citizen, has sent me the challenging resolution against anti-Semitism recently submitted to the Business Committee of the General Conference. Such resolutions are comforting to us and indicate that the organized religious bodies who are indeed fighting in the cause of high morality, true religion and democracy in the present darkness which is even threatening the American Jews, Unitarians and all other Christians must now stand together in defense of religion and human brotherhood.

The resolution on Anti-Semitism reads: "Whereas it is apparent that in our land anti-Semitism is on the increase, being fed by the currents of hysteria and suspicion so frequently arising in periods of national emergency, and whereas anti-Semitism represents not only a direct and flagrant attack upon a religious minority, but also constitutes an ominous threat to the security and liberty of all minority groups, be it therefore resolved that the American Unitarian Association solemnly declare on behalf of the spirit of free religion and of Americanism that anti-Semitism constitutes a menace to true religion, to high morality, and to the free and democratic institutions of America, and be it further resolved that the American Unitarian Association call upon its churches and all other churches in the liberal tradition to implement their sentiments and declarations against anti-Semitism and every kindred religious and racial prejudice with such action through the various agencies of our church organizations, such as the Church Schools, and chapters and branches of the General Alliance, Laymen's League, and Young People's Religious Union, etc., as to demonstrate to America and to the world that the Church of the Free Spirit has found not only its voice but also its purpose and will to oppose anti-Semitism and every similar movement that tends to set creed against creed, religion against religion, man against man."

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

With the march of British and Russian forces into Iran, or Persia, to put an end to Iran's increasing subservience to Germany whose agents used the country as a propaganda center for pouring poison into the Near East and India, some curiosity must have been aroused in Jews as to what the Jewish community of Persia is like, particularly since nothing is ever heard from this branch of the family. A good idea of how backward it is may be obtained from the fact that the Jews acquire whatever influence they may have among the upper classes due to their ability as tailors.

Iran, which was preparing to be a willing dupe in the Nazi scheme to get oil, magnificent palaces, and a vantage point for the domination of Asia, Africa and the Mediterranean, treats the Jews better than the Nazis do only in that it allows them to exist miserably. Lord Curzon said years ago that as soon as any outburst of bigotry takes place in Persia the Jews are apt to be the first victims. There have been Jews there since the earliest times and their presence may have been due to deportation from other countries. Had conquest by Hitler not been stopped by the Allied occupation of Iran it is possible that the Jews might have been deported from that ancient home, but it is hard to see how one much worse could have been chosen for them.

The depth of stagnation and deterioration to which the Jewish people of Iran have gradually descended is illustrated by the absence of communal organizations and welfare agencies. There are about sixty thousand Jews in the country and ten thousand of them constitute one-fourth of the entire population of Teheran, the capital. It is a fitting commentary on the plight of the German Jews to note that some of these refugees took shelter in Iran where the thought uppermost in their minds must be, as in the case of all prisoners, escape. Refugees of longer standing are Russian Jews who were fugitives from Bolshevism. There are some French Jews because when the Alliance Israelite Universelle founded schools in Teheran they could not get native Persian Jews to direct them, so culturally impoverished was the community.

This community, though in a state of paralysis, is not too disabled to reject unity. As everywhere in the world of Jewry, their greatest need is liberalism, and as everywhere in the world of Jewry there is not much liberalism between Jew and Jew, even in a place and situation where mutual helpfulness and cooperation would seem to be the price of life itself. Hardly able to raise its head from the repeated blows of age-long persecution, this outcast people is still able to perpetuate within itself rigid class and cultural differences. Not all the members of the community live in the ghetto and so some of them can look down on its squalid inmates, and upon each other.

In Teheran there are large Jewish stores. The majority of the Jews of Iran are engaged in trade in textiles, antiques, carpets, and such articles. There are Jewish peddlers, scavengers, manufacturers of wines, and those mixed up in undertakings to which disrespect is attached. Some of them are weavers of tapestries and carpets which they often fashion as pictures of holy places and decorate with Bible verses. There are also Jewish dancers, jewellers, artisans, and a few musicians, some doctors, but no lawyers. Iran is one country which cannot complain that the Jews take too large a part in the commercial life, partly because Armenian competition is hard for any others to meet successfully.

A sorry picture of the religious life of Iranian Jews was painted by Alfred Werner and Walter Fischel not long ago in the American Hebrew. Synagogue service, conducted according to the Sephardic rites, is marred by lack of decorum, by noise, and by beggars asking alms even on the Sabbath and the high holy days right inside the synagogues. There is more primitive superstition than spirituality manifested and the praying shawl and tephillin are regarded as charms. Part of the goings-on in the synagogue consist of unruly business over the collection of pledges. The people attend, though, because practically the only social outlet they have is through the synagogue or cafe. They do not ostracize apostates from Judaism and old family ties are maintained with converts to Mohammedism and Christianity who leave their religion for economic reasons. Even the religious officiators know little more than the Five Books of Moses and the regulations covering circumcision and the ritual slaughtering of animals for food. Jews in Persia speak the language of the country and knowledge of Hebrew is common. As in other Oriental countries, the Jewish merchants have a Hebrew jargon as a business code and the most illiterate can count in Hebrew.

Anti-Semitism and religious fanaticism lie back of the grim, sordid, poverty-ridden atmosphere which envelopes this Jewish community. For many generations the Jews were barred from agriculture. A Moslem will not touch food handled by a Jew, so that Jews can sell only to other Jews or Christians. They are kept out of handicrafts by guilds which control the market places. They are usually compelled to live in certain quarters. Since time immemorial they have been marked by disabilities of occupation and dress. Even in Isfahan where there is one of the oldest Jewish settlements in Iran, Lord Curzon found that they are not permitted to wear the Persian headdress, to have shops in the bazaar, to build the walls of their houses as high as a Moslem's, or to ride in the streets. These restrictions have marked them out as social pariahs. Enforced by despotic hands over long years they are harder to face than occasional or even periodic pogroms. The general condition of Persian Jewry is simple to understand in the light of the grinding circumstances and the deliberate inhumanity under which it has lived for so long. f.f.c.

The Jewish Community Must Grow To Local And National Unity

MATURITY CARRIES THE ABILITY FOR FAR-SIGHTED PLANNING

By Martin M. Cohn, Of Toronto, Executive Director, United Jewish Welfare Fund

There are seasons in philanthropy. In the Spring when the flowers bloom, Passover appeals, too, crop up. When the summer sun blisters city pavements, fresh air camps come out with their propaganda. Fall brings Federation and Community Chest campaigns; and the cold winds of winter can always be used to turn thoughts to less fortunate ones here and overseas.

Some people have hobbies in giving. They prefer to support summer camps because in their own youth they were deprived of summer holidays—although some people think that camps are unnecessary for the very same reason. Others are more sympathetic to overseas appeals because they have relatives living in European countries.

No one has ever been able to take a dash of summer sun, a dash of winter bleakness, and another dash of spring freshness, and concoct the perennial climate of Shangri-la. No community has ever been able to merge all appeals into one so as to satisfy every individual and every section in the community. Hobbies still persist, and personal allegiances still overshadow the broader outlook for the good of all.

In every Federation, Community Chest and Welfare Fund, there are always individual agencies who are positive that they could raise more funds by running their own separate campaign, are positive they have the majority of community support. They fail to realize that a number of other agencies feel exactly the same way, and if they all went their own ways, chaos would again reign.

In even the best regulated communities, there are feelings of jealousy among community organizations. The summer camps with two-month programmes may feel that their needs are overshadowed by the year-round welfare programmes. Sometimes the local agencies consider themselves overlooked in relation to the overseas needs. The leisure-time agencies have always felt hampered because their programmes have taken second place in relation to relief programmes. These feelings are quite natural — they exist in every family regardless of background and training. They are also to some extent true. The wisdom of Solomon is needed to balance all these conflicting claims.

Some agencies will receive what appears to be preferential treatment when the "atmosphere" favours them. In a time such as the present, programmes of relief for refugees naturally tend to grow in stature partly because of the really colossal needs, and partly because public sympathy is stirred by the horrors inflicted upon these people. It is only to be expected that should a period of unemployment set in after the war, the pendulum will swing back to local relief programmes.

In a well-organized central fund with a sound budget committee, the extremes of these swings of public favour are guarded against. Allotments are made on the basis of need, rather than emotion and passing sentiment, so that basic programmes are protected against the changing whims of fashion in philanthropies. Such a budget committee programme must on occasion interpret to an agency that for the moment it can not take first place in communal need, nor in the public's imagination and sympathy. However, it is never easy to submerge a strongly felt individual interest for the sake of the common good. This task of convincing an agency to submerge its individual program for the good of all, and to take a long view, requires mature leadership and a mature community.

Communities do grow up and mature, but slowly. Our difficulty here in Canada is that we are still comparatively young. Our communities are achieving the balanced judgment of maturity through the age-old trial and error process of growing up. We are indeed experiencing growing pains. In the United States there is growing strength in local unity; but very little national unity.

We must grow to both local and national unity to face the problems of the present war, and the future post-war period. No matter what the situations which confront us, each must be judged according to need. The basic services which provide a foundation for our communities must be protected and ensured of support. The task of building a new life for dispossessed refugees will be gigantic. The shifting over from a war-time to a peace-time economy, the re-establishment of the armed forces and munition workers into civilian life, will also create vast problems. Some responsibility for both will come to rest on our shoulders.

Let us hope that we shall have achieved the maturity that will enable us to plan far-sightedly and communally, both local and nationally, when we are called to these tasks.

concentrating on foreign policy. The audience of twenty persons included two police inspectors, a captain and seven other policemen, including Toohill, and two agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Thomas F. Moore jr., Assistant District Attorney, suggested to Magistrate Hoppin that McWilliams watched his language at the Queens meetings because he detected the presence of the police, but let himself go in the Bronx where no police were visible.

McWilliams, whose glib tongue is as noteworthy as his handsome features, spoke to Magistrate Hoppin for fifteen minutes. He said he did not think he had violated the terms of the promise to Magistrate Hoppin which had enabled him to stay out of jail. He said his promise had induced him to force a campaign which he had planned to make for election to the City Council.

Magistrate Hoppin said that the defendant had promised to refrain from the "pernicious activities" which the court, in convicting him of disorderly conduct for inciting racial hatred, found had taken place. "Certainly the spirit of the promise made to the court has been violated." Magistrate Hoppin said. He observed that he could revoke the suspension placed on execution of sentence for any cause.

"I think," he said, "that the American Destiny party is only a blind used by you for the purpose of stirring up racial antagonisms. Intolerance of any kind has my utmost condemnation. You can see the result of it abroad, with murders and horrors resulting in the countries subject to it. In view of the events brought to light, I order that the sentence of sixty days be put into effect."
